

Amateur use of recently allocated small HF band segments has proven valuable to all users of High Frequencies by providing a FREE source of propagation data and observations that no commercial enterprise would undertake. My experience has been that these amateurs are good stewards of these allocations.